M. D'Ormescheville Relieved of His Functions After the Disclosure That He Had Convicted the Wrong Man. [BT THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LEMANS (France) Oct., 12.—[By Atlantic Cable.] M. D'Ormescheville, government commissioner on the Council of War of the Fourth Army Corps, has been relieved of his functions. He was prosecuting counsel at the first court-martial of former Capf. Dreyfus.

D'Ormescheville also conducted the prosecution, several years ago, against a soldier named Voisin, who was charged with murdering and robbing a woman at Cherbourg. Voisin was condemned to penal servitude for life and was transported to Cheyenne. The real murderer of the woman confessed recently, and Voisin returned. He demanded a revision of the court-martial proceedings, and secured an acquittal.

SALT LAKE, Oct. 12.—(Exclusive Dispatch.) Within a month the Southern Pacific will abandon its main line from a point two miles south of Corinne to a point fust beyond the depot in Ogden. From then on to the completion of Lucin cut-off, the Southern Pacific will operate all its trains on the Oregon Short Line from a point near Corrine into Ogden. Work was begun on the new deal at Brigham today. The Utah Construction Company has a contract, and the change will necessitate a new connecting line between the Southern Pacific and Oregon Short Line of about three miles.

The new track will leave the Southern Pacific two miles south of Corrinne and join the Oregon Short Line at Brigham. Then the Southern Pacific will immediately tear up its track from a point near Corinne to a point near Ogden bridge, a little over twenty miles, and the rails and material will

But there is some additional significance in the announcement that 145 miles of the Southern Pacific from Ogden to Lucin is to be abandoned.

The people in the region which supplies the merrymakers at this annual picnic are really a race apart. Cut of from their more enlightened neighbors by the strip of wild hill country surrounding them, they are senreely more American citizens in fact today than if they had never left the Ostseeprovingen.

The plenic derives its name from the bit of a village that is their metropolis and it affords them almost their only opportunity for unrestricted social intercoirse. The land they farm is none of the best and for the rest of the year the people in the scattered farmhouses see little of one another except in the moments after Sunday morning services at the way, side churches and the few busy minutes in the weekly market days at Kratzervile.

recitations at the symnasium, particularly my Caesar.

"'Any particular reason for getting your Caesar at the gymnasium?' I asked.

"'Well, sir. Caesar is the hardest study for me that I have. When I get to the gym I'll take up one of the old Roman's paragraphs on the Helvetil and when I get stuck, as I am sure to do, I will just lay it aside and pick up a pair of Indian clubs, or do the trapeze for a while, until I get limbered up, and then I'll take my Caesar and it's as easy again.

"'If I ever master my Caesar the credit will be due to the gym." If patted him on the arm and walked on. Happy boy of the twentieth century! I hope the gym Caesar will stay by him better than the sawbuck Caesar.

"When I was sweating over my Caesar I used to have to saw wood in the back lot before I started to school in the morning. I had to take up my Caesar at night, or pretty early in the morning.

"I never could discover that the exercise in the sawbuck helped me in my studies. My father thought it did. If he knew how little I knew of Caesar now, he would think otherwise.

"I suppose if exercise at a gym helps a boy out in his Caesar, a game of football would solve the problems of Euclid. I was on the eve of turning back and asking the boy I met what he thought, but when I looked he was gone.

"My partner asked me several times during the day what I was thinking about, but I didn't tell him. But the lad I met taught me a lesson—when your task becomes heavy, take a little exercise."

"Is that good exercise?"
"It isn't that, but indigestion is usually caused by people eating too much, and they can't do it, if the dining-room table is used for ping-pong."

in Dunieavy being thrown out at nrst.

The score was thus tied at 4 to 4 in the sixth inning, and after that both teams played a beautiful game and McDonaid reformed a little. The seventh, eighth and ninth innings went through without either team getting as far as third base.

In the tenth the visitors came within an inch of scoring, but quick work by Householder and Toman stopped arus. Huriburt had singled to left and then, after the second man was out.

Wild Bill doubled to the score-board.

by Householder and Toman stopped a rus. Huriburt had singled to left and then, after the second man was out. Wild Bill doubled to the score-board. Wild Bill doubled to the score-board. Huriburt speeded around the bases like a streak of light, but Householder recovered the ball near the fence, shot it to Toman and he in turn sent it whissing to Roach at the plate just in time to catch Huriburt.

When the Looices went to bat in the tenth, the big crowd set up a chorus that could have been heard for blocks. Toman popped up an easy fit to Mohler and the race-track caw bells rang out in glad acclaim. Roach sent an easy grounder to Dunleavy at short and he again threw high to Streth, so high that Julis had to jump up to catch the ball. When Julia came down out of the sky, Roach was on the bas. Dillon bounced a high one toward first base, which Cooper caught on the run and touched the bag, Roach going to second on this. When Wheeler went to bat, no one thought he would de anything, for he had not made a hit for six innings. However, to the great delight of the 5000 cheering fans, he sent a fast one past second base and Walters juggled it just long enough to allow Roach to score with the winning run.

Both Toman and Mohler did star work at all times.

McCreedie's batting was the one feature. He got four safeties and the fifth was a long fly to center field.

The race-track delegation was sent back to the hay barn in good shape, after going half way on Saturday.

Warner made eighteen put outs without a sign of blunder, and Dillon on second, handled everything that came his way.

There was merry popping all through the play, the records of pitchers suffering, while the batamen fattened their averages. If while the hitting was almost even in both games, the victories were earned by bunching of the safeties.

RIVERSIDE INDIANS WIN.

At San Bernardino Friday the second football eleven of Sherman Institute, the Indian school at Riverside, walloped the team of the San Bernardine High School, to the tune of 47 to 6. The white boys were outclassed in weight, condition and experience, and the redskins made touchdowns almost at will. Next Saturday the first team of Indians will play the San Bernardino Athletic Club eleven at Chemawa Park.

Logan Wheatly, the crack player of the University of Southern California football eleven, may not take part in the annual intercollegiste game with Pomons. He has been appointed to a charge in Arizona by the Methodist Conference, to take effect November 1. A Jefferson sent of Klein three and C. C want of the year is slated for November 15. It may be that he will remain for the game, as his departure would greatly lessen the chances of U.S.C. winning from the always-formidable Claremont boys.

The County Board of Supervisors has granted Weirick & Latham, a local real estate firm, a franchise for an electric railway on Grand avenue from Glendale to Phoenix, nine miles, on the Tempe road from Phoenix to Tempe, nine miles, and thence to Mesa along the county road, seven miles. Application has been made to the City Council of Phoenix for permission to lay rails through the city along Adams street. The promoters agree to commence work within one year from date of the franchise, to build the line within another year and to pay into the city treasury 2 per cent. of the earnings of the line.

FREAKY CHURCH BURNER.

The mystery of the origin of the fire that destroyed the First Baptist Church a few weeks ago appears to have been solved by a letter received lately from Charles Lloyd Limes, former Janitor of the church. The letter was found pluned to the wail in the temporary hall occupied by the congregation. The communication is prolix and agitated, and runs into aleged poetry, but on the main subject says: "Eight years ago I made a profession of Christianity, but I haven't been living a moral (let alone Christian) life since, and have given up all hope of heaven. Life has been a fallure clear through, and it would have been botter for all concerned if I had never been botter for all concerned if I had never been botter for all concerned if I had never been botter for all concerned if I had never been botter for all concerned if I had never been botter for all concerned if I had never been botter for all concerned if I had never been botter for all concerned if I had never been botter for all concerned if I had never been botter for all concerned if I had never been botter for all it would have deliberate in the pays for the category of the church, and I have sworn before God that I would make it right as far as money could Subsequently the police found the man who had been frightened. He is Chris Maier, a baker, who resides at the Santa Ross House, Fourth and San Pedro streets. He said he was going home when he was confronted by a man with a gun. The man coverd him without speaking, and Maier, hadly frightened, ran across the street and escaped through a back yard. period of much-needed repose.

ENJOYS PREEDOM TO SMOKE.

In a flat it is next to impossible to achieve this. Everything opens into overything else, and the inhabitants, like the members of the early church, have everything in common. When the only apartment that is not presempted as a bedroom—it is usually the one opening from the drawing-room, and dignified by the name of a library—has no doors between it and the room adjoining, it is not easy to manage even a semblance of privacy for the man of the house. When it is possible, with the aid of curtains and by planning, to keep that part of the dweifing unvisited when its nominal owner is taking his rest, let it be done.

I can hear the man aforesaid entering into vehement protest against such consideration. He is not a baby or a sick woman, he will say, to have his nerves humored.

That would be a very tactiess wife who would force this view of the matter upon him. It is not necessary for her to announce to him that she is coddiing him. All she has to do is to recognize the fact that even a man geta tired after a hard day, and manage that he may have a little quiet either when he comes home or while he reads his paper after dinner.

Sometimes even this is not possible in a flat. The one room that serves for the gathering place of the family is all that is available for the man's smoking and loading-room.

In that case the woman should make up her mind that she will let the husband smoke where he pleases. The smoke will not hurt the curtains, although she may think so. The cushions will not be permanently injured thereby. The rugs and brica-brac will be much increased.

WANTS A PLACE FOR A NAP.

When a man comes home tired he

WANTS A PLACE FOR A NAP.

WANTS A PLACE FOR A NAP.

When a man comes home tired he should have some place to throw himself down for a nap. I know of households where the bed in which he sleeps at night is too much dressed up to be disturbed in the daytime. The master of the house may catch a nap in his arm chair, perhaps, but he cannot lie down on his bed until the shams and spread and day pillows have been taken off.

Such things are more or less of an abomination, even under the most favorable circumstances. When they stand in the way of necessary rest they should be abolished. No desire to make a good appearance has any importance compared with that of having a place where a tired man or woman can take a little rest without going to the bother of removing the ornamental and useless furniture of a bed. That sort of thing may be admir-

AVOID HABIT OF NAGGING.

Another mark of consideration a woman can show her husband is to abstain from nagging. This is a hard lesson for a woman. Many of those who seem to be constitutional naggers have drifted into the habit from a real pride in their husbands and a logging to keep them up to the mark. A woman who is proud of her lord and master cannot bear to see him fall short of her ideal, whether it is in a question of morals or a point of manners. It may be owned that sometimes there is danger of her laying more stress upon the latter than upon the former. She feels that he is the best judge of what is right and wrong for himself, but she knows that she is the best judge of how he shall behave. As a consequence she keeps her eyes open for little careless habits that he may silde into and rules him up sharply about them.

Every woman is in a measure responsible for her husband. He needs to have her remind him once in a while of some negligence or thoughtlessness. Men are less imitative than women, and are prone to overlook this or that trifling convention, to fall into this or that trifling convention, to fall into this or that triek of speech or conduct. If the wife corrects these gently and tactfully he is not wounded or irritated unless he is a rather unreasonable sort of fellow. But the kindliest man resents being told of his defects when he is tired or when other persons are present. He does not wish to have the reprimand, "rubbed in." Such "rubbing in" he calls nagging—and with reason.

HUSBANDS HATE CRITICISM.

HUSBANDS HATE CRITICISM.

It is a common saying that all men have to be managed—which means that they should be treated with tact and tenderness. Sometimes these qualifies gequire that a man's defects a should be passed over. They may be so much a part of himself that it is like drawing teeth to get them out of his nature. It is not essential to the man's temporal or eternal salvation that they should be plucked out and cast from him. He might possibly suit his wife better without these flaws—but she should bear in mind that some of her shortcomings probably ity her husband quite as much as his little errors do her. Recollecting this, let her make it her glory to pass over such transgressions. The man's comfort is worth too much to be importified by constant criticism.

A very sane and sensible woman was talking of this matter one day to a circle of younger matrons.

"You talk about 'keeping your husbands up to things," she said. "It used to talk in that way once. But my husband is no longer a young man, and it is not so easy as it was to break him of the little habits he slips into. For a long while I tried to do this, and would speak to him about them again and again. But I saw it worried him and made him unhapppy. And after thinking about it, I concluded I would have to choose between the wire. —[Spare Moments.]

letting him feel that when he came home it was to a refuge from bother and annoyance, or nagging at him to keep him up to my standard. So I decided that his comfort was worth mofe than my whim. When it is only some little thing about him that bothers me B let it alone."

This is a lesson most women have to learn. In the beginning of their home life they must solve what is essential and what is not, and govern themselves accordingly. The homes in which there is least nagging will undoubtedly be the happlest.

BRINGING HOME A PRIEND.

BRINGING HOME A FRIEND.

BRINGING HOME A FRIEND.

Early in this paper something was said about a man having the right to bring home a friend to dinner unannounced. For some unknown reason this is a privilege highly valued by the average man, and he likes to think he possesses it no matter how rarely he exercises it. The simple joy he derives from this prerogative is too great for a woman to rob him of lightly. Even if it upsets her calculations a little she should not show her husband that she is disturbed. It is by such gracious conduct that she endears herself to him and makes his conviction surer than before that he has the best home in the world.

After all, it is his house. He has a right to do in it as he pleases. His wife should make him feel her recognition of this fact. It heightens his sense of his own importance, and never yet was there a man—or a woman—who was not more amiable when swelling with personal importance than when placed in a position of comparative insignificance.

DERSISTENT FIREBUG

Criminal Ras Eluded Officers and Es-taped Discovery for Ten Years—High Prices Make Season Prosperous One for Bean Hen—An Alleged Lunatic Escapes.

BANTA MARIA, Oct. 12.—The firebug who has been hovering about santa Ynex for the past ten years has become active again and after an unsuccessful attempt several weeks ago to burn up the old Walker building, sinally succeeded, last Sunday morning. The building had been used as a hotel until recently, and at the time of its destruction was about to be made into a saloon. The fire was discovered by Louis Marre, who slept in the upper story. The crackling of the flames awakened him, and he was barely able to escape by sliding down a post which supported the porch. Joe Brown's saloon, which adjoined the blasing building and Hartman's saloon, located on the opposite of the street, narrowly escaped a similar fate only by hard work.

Among the buildings that have been set on fire in this unfortunate place are the Santa Ynex Land & Improvement Company's office, the postoffice, Thomas Daniel's saloon, Pioneer Livery Stable, Miller & Laughila' merchandise store, Brown's saloon, Greer's hotel and a number of barns. Each building has been destroyed at a sejarate time, with every indication of incendiarism. Despite their utmost effort, the officers have never been able to locate the criminal, although in this last case the Sheriff and District-Attorney are of the opinion that the guilty parties will be found.

TOO MANY JAPANESE.

The Board of Supervisors has been appealed to to levy a license of $400 on abalone fishing. This prohibitive tax is proposed with the hopes of diminishing the large number of Japanese and Chinese fishermen that are now rapidly exterminating this shell-fish in the vicinity of Santa Barbara Channel. There is a law prohibiting taking undersized abalones, but has the fishermen are so numerous, and work in such remote parts of the adjoining islands, where the game warden cannot detect them, the law is almost a dead letter.

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 12.—Early in the campaign the local Democracy made its boasts that the labor vote of the city and county would go solid for Lane and the rest of the Democratic tleket. ABLE YOUNG MAN.

The people of the United States are reginning to get used to the visits of oyal personages, and, while the stay of the Crown Prince of Siam, who omes in an unofficial manner, will obtored the same furore that Prince Introduct a good deal of national construction.

Siam, in its far-away corner of the orid, is one of the most interesting of the surviving small independent ingdoms, and hen future, from a comercial standpoint, is of great interest us. Our trade there within the pant we years has increased wonderfully, and American influence has been felt bout the very throne for a long time ast. The Prince himself has manisted more than once, it is said, a inchant for American behuties, whom has seen abroad, and one of his pernal reasons for visiting this country. Foute to Siam, is to renew some of pleasant acquaintances formed in prope. His Riighness, after all, is redly more than a boy, and we can ally understand how the fresh arms and winning personality of education that way always attracted him with a private cosciol. In being the proposed of the presentative American whom he may be also him to make the french arms and winning personality of education at heavy and have led him to mile the fourth and way always attracted him being with and have led him to mile the fourth and and winning personality of education a tion that his elder brother has enjoyed, although he has sone through Oxford and has served as a middy in the British service. It is said to be the King's intent to place the Crown Prince at the head of the army in a short time, while the naval graduate will take his turn in the Siamese navy, quite a respectable little force, of which the royal yacht, Mahn Chakrikri, of 3000 tons, is the best, and thence to work his way up to its command in time.

Those Americans familiar with London can recall that mansion in the West End, given over to a regular colony of Siamese princelings, who have sought there, what they cannot get so well at home, a thorough modern education. These little blackhaired, yellow-skinned gentlemen have one and all endeared themselves to those that have met them, not only because of their gracious demeaner and self-respecting assimilation with the democracy of the British youth, but because of their serious attention to their books and their preparation for positions of responsibility, in time, at home. All of them, including the Crown Prince and his brother, now with him, are slight in build, and of medium stature, with winning, open faces, that are constantly smiling with a charm that is hard to describe.

An INTERNATIONAL INCIDENT. Somdetch Chowfa Maha Vajiravudh was born in Bankok on the first day of January, 1850, and fifteen years later, almost to a day, he was proclaimed Crown Prince, and thereon hangs a romance of the court of Siam not commonly known. In the land of the white elephant, the King has three queens and an unlimited number of wives, but it is with the queens that our story is concerned. The royal dignity is nominally hereditary, but does not always descend from the father to the eldest son, each sovereign being invested with the right of nominanting his own successor. The wisdom of the swas shown in the selection of the present Crown Prince, and, naturally, with a mother's pride, this chosen one of the King looked to have her son, in time, succeed to the power of her lord and master. To the account of Queen was given Somdetch Chowfa Mahin Vajiravudh, and, in her every of her lord and master. To the second a Mahin Vajiravudh, and, in her every of her lord and master. To the second and the present Crown Prince, and has been the British in Burmah on one side, and the French in their Chinese possessions on the other; has, constituted, in fact, a variable buffer state between the Commercial aspirations of England on the French in their Chinese possessions on the other, and the prench colonial party on the other. All of this became acute ut 1981, when Prench colonial party on the other, and honest American, and his truthui but unwise diagnosis was at once that of poisoning. For his lack of tact—something that can hardly be excused in an oriental—he was promptly relieved of his office near the throne and, as a mark of royal displeasure, was made physician-in-chief to one of the arms of the nation's defense. No more risks were now to be run lest the succession go further, al. the of the province of princelings.

the Prince will be among us for about two months, and as he wishes to limit his visit as far as possible to a private one, his official reception will be uniformly modest. The Prince and his party, including two native military aides, will visit all of the principal eastern cities, and will then go to Buffalo, Pittisburgh, Indianapolis, St. Louis, the Yellowstone Park, the gold mines of Colorado, Los Angeles, and thence to San Francisco, where he will embark for the Orient. It will be our purpose to make his stay a pleasant one, and to show him how needful to his country's advance are American facilities and inventions.

TWO KINDS OF EK.

Socialist Preacher and Spiritualist Medium Rivals for Attention at Socialist Headquarters Lest Night.

Millions of acres of farming land, now arid and uncultivated but fertile, were portioned out to the farmers of the United States at Socialist Hail last night by Edward Backus, who discussed "The Farmer and Socialism." All the machinery and modern conveniences for making Mother Earth labor her hardest and give up her best were distributed among the agriculturists, and the audience of Socialists fireamed that the whole country looked like Central Park.

In an adjacent hall "Dr." W. Green, spirit medium, was calling spirits from the "vasty deep" and from adjoining States for 10 cents.

While "Comrade" Backus drew alluring pictures of broad stretches, where the farmers worked only in the cool of the day, and then retired to the corner copperative store to rend the ancient history of the United States as it was before socialism, "Dr." Green was calling up a spirit from San Fedro. During its headlong career in obedience to the summons, it is supposed that it was obliged to pass through the Socialist hall.

It might have been this that caused the "change of vibration. Some one asked "Comrade" Backus where the farmers were going to get all of these conveniences and broad acres. The inquirer was not a Socialist, avidently, for the others in the room, including the children and one or two babes in arms, laughed at him.

"Comrade" Backus smiled pityingly and proceeded to answer the question in a resume of the Reign of Terror and a dissertation on the evils of trusts.

The spirit passing through the Socialist Hall reached "Dr." Green in bad shape. It must have become converted to socialism, for it refused to answer any ordinary spiritualistic questions, and a poor woman who was awaiting important news from her grandfather, had to go away hungry.

DAND OF COLONISTS BOUND FOR AUSTRALIA

COLONIZING SCHEME OF LOS AN-GELES COUNTY MEN.

ng to Try to Raise California Fruits Domain Fell to the Lot of W .H.

Fifty Southern California families, some of them residents of Los Angeles, will embark from San Francisco for Australia in about a month, there to form a colony and attempt to raise California products, principally fruit.

This is a new thing for this part of the country, as most of our people come in here to colonize instead of leaving for less favored lands.

The prime mover in the scheme is W. H. Crulkshank, a fruit grower residing near Long Beach, Crulkshank has spent some time in Australia, returning from there about a year ago. He first visited the southern continent in 1885, when he went as a stock raiser. At this time he got possession of a large tract of land in the northern part of Victoria, containing about seven thousand acres, much of which he believes is especially adapted to the cultivation of semi-tropic fruits.

Seconding Crulkshank is M. M. Hamlin, formerly a rancher on Vermont avenue, just south of the city limits, but now a resident of Manila, P. I. Hamlin is ast enthusiastic believer in the future of fasit growing in Australia, although experts have often decided against it, and himself owns property which is now bearing citrus fruits. Hamlin has been strenuous in his efforts to get people to go, the active work here having been done by his nephew, Raiph Hamlin, who gave the information to a Times reporter. Crulkshank has taken full care of the land work here having been done by his nephew. Raiph Hamilin, who gave the information to a Times reporter. Cruik-shank has taken full care of the lund titles, and all legal processes connected with the securing of the territory there. The way in which the land was obtained is unique. Cruikshank' originally had a grant from the colonial government, allowing the possibility of perhanent possession, as the land is a choice bit of the King's soil. Later an official clerk defaulted, absconded, and carried away or destroyed numerous papers, among them all representing the crown's right to this particular property. After a long judicial batfle, in which the terms of the lease were contested and determined effort made to oust the tenant, it was finally settled on Cruikshank for all time, by a weary court, presumably because the lawyers were tired out and wished for peace.

Many of the colonists are from this section. Nearly all of them have been fruit growers or farmers, and will not go with inexperienced hands into this undertaking. Several are from San Diego county, seventeen from Orange county and Santa Ana, and seven families come from the Riverside district. It is the plan of the colonists to confine themselves strictly to farming for the first year, and then to experiment along the line of fruit growing. Their VERLOOKS THOUSANDS. Porch Climber Enters Chester Place Residence and Steals Few Dollars-Might Have Taken Valuable Jewelry. Chester Place, that aristocratic park avenue which extends south from Twenty-third street to west of Figueroa street, and is bordered by some of the finest residences in the city, was visited by a burgiar Saturday night, and from the manner in which his work was done, it is believed that he was a professional. He entered only one house, the mansion of Dr. W. J. Davis.

The family had not retired and the thief scaled the front porch and entered Mrs. Davis's sleping apartments through a window. He did not turn on the electric lights, but struck Might Have Taken Valuable Jewelry.

through a window. He did not turn on the electric lights, but struck matches and began a hurried search through the dresser. On the top of the dresser and in several of the drawers were diamonds and other jewelry worth several thousand dollars, but these valuables the thief overlooked. He found only a small purse containing about $7, and this he took.

A little son of Dr. Davis started upstairs, and at his approach the thief fied and jumped off the porch. No one saw him. The case was reported to the police, who made an investigation, but there was nothing by which they could secure a clew to the identity of the robber.
